

Title: Quarantine Dash!

Authors:

Jason Tran, Lexington Whalen, Matthew Riddick, Rachael Stokes

Problem Statement:

Our users are frustrated that while they are in quarantine they do not get a chance to choose what food they eat. They receive premade boxed meals delivered to their doors for each meal. Our solution should provide these students with the ability to choose and order food through the university meal plan and have it delivered to their door.

1. Who is experiencing the problem?

University of South Carolina students in quarantine.

2. What is the problem?

Students in quarantine don't get to choose what food they receive for meals. This would be for students to choose what food.

3. Where does the problem present itself?

When students at the University of South Carolina are put into quarantine, and do not have the option to select what food they would like to eat.

4. Why does it matter?

Students should be able to choose what type of food they eat because many people have dietary restrictions and allergies.